BOLTON

Title:

Location: Town Hall, Main Street

Inscription: Names of 21 men who gave their lives during the rebellion

Artist:

Foundry Fabricator:

Dedicated: Dec. 20, 1866

Cost: $600

Construction: Marble

History: The tablets were dedicated on Thursday evening, December 20th 1866. The committee was chaired by S. Henry Howe who also contributed $100 toward the tablets. Rev. T.T. Stone whose son had perished at Andersonville offered the prayer. George B. Loring of Salem gave the oration. A dirge was sung lead by H.F. Haynes. Hayes had lost three sons dead, one son was seriously wounded, and his daughter left home to become a nurse serving in Columbia Hospital in Washington City.

An ode was sung at the opening of the ceremony:

While others lived and kept their walks with men,
These fell and cannot come back again.
The cause for which they fought, for which they died,
Remember then and hold their names high.

The last name appearing on the list of soldiers who died from the town is Thornton Hayden. He was a member of the 5th Massachusetts Cavalry and died in camp at Readville, Massachusetts at the age of 21. The remarkable thing about this name is that he was a black man. A contraband, he was brought from Virginia by Captain Henry Whitman upon his return after suffering severe wounds at Gettysburg. So in the small New England town, listed among the sons of those who have been the elite of the town for generations – a former slave is acknowledged.

BOSTON – SHAW MEMORIAL

Title: Shaw Memorial

Location: Boston Common, Facing State House

Inscription: Omnia relinqiut sevare rempublicam

Right in the van of the red ramparts' slippery swell the hear that beat a charge he fell forward as fit a man: but the high soul burns on to light men's' feet where deal for noble ends makes dying sweet.

To the Fifty Fourth Massachusetts Infantry

The White Officers taking like and honor in their hands cast their lot with men of a despised race unproven in war and risked death as inciters of servile insurrection if taken prisoners besides encountering all the common perils of camp, march and battle.

The black rank and file volunteered when disaster clouded the Union Cause. Severed without pay for eighteen months till given that of white troops. Faced threatened enslavement if captures. Were brave in action. Patient under heavy and dangers labors. And cheerful amid hardships and privations.

Together they gave to the Nation and the World undying proof that Americans of African decent possess the pride courage and devotion of the patriot solider. One hundred and eighthly thousand such Americans enlisted under the Union Flag in

MDCCCLXII-MDCCCLSV.

Artist: Agustus Saint-Gaudens (see artist profiles); H H Richardson and Charles Folen McKim, architects

Foundry Fabricator: Gorham Manufacturing

Dedicated: May 31, 1897

Cost: $50,000

Construction: Sculpture – bronze, Frame and base: Tennessee marble and granite

History: The Shaw Memorial, commemorating the 54th Massachusetts Regiment, is arguably the most famous and well recognized Civil War monument in the nation. It not only commemorates the spirit of American freedom but also is a monumental work of art.

The artist, Agustus Saint Gaudens, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and the son of Mary McGinness and Frenchman Bernard Saint Gaudens. Among the millions who fled the famine, the immigrated to American in 1848 when he was one years old. He studied in Paris and returning to New York became on the foremost artists of his time.

Robert Gould Shaw was from a prominent, pro- abolitionist, Boston family. Governor John A. Andrew was the first war governor actively promote black regiments and asked Shaw to become its leader. While many believed that it was a fools errand, as it was well know that blacks would not follow orders and would run from battle. The 54th Massachusetts was mustered into service on May 13, 1864 and dispatched to South Carolina. On July 18, 1863 the myth was shattered when the 54th lead an ill fated attack on Battery Wagner, loosing 25% of the Regiment, including Colonel Shaw.

Planning for the work began in 1865. It was the brainchild of a former slave, J. B. Smith. The dedication was overseen by Governor Roger Wilcott and the memorial address given by Colonel Henry Lee Higginson. Booker T. Washington was a principal speaker.

The purpose power of Shaw and his men are powerfully represented. The soldiers are rendered in detail to the Corps badges and buttons.

The Boston Arts Commission reported that "Peter Nolan of Post 75, Grand Army of the Republic, marched the entire route (six miles) on crutches, having lost a leg at the second Battle of Bull Run."

Martin Milmore was one of the most prolific artist of civil war monuments and establish a style of grander and symbolism. Representations were of common soldiers rather than generals and admirals. Figures include "Peace", "History" and "the Genius of America." The four bass relieves at the base of the monument are Departure for the War, the Sanitary Commission, the Navy and the Return from the War.

Milmore's more publicized work included the seminal Roxbury Soldiers' Monument (found in the Forest Hills Cemetery and replicas are found in Framingham, North Brookfield and Fitchburg), the Sphinx in Mount Auburn Cemetery and lions memorializing two Massachusetts Regiments in the entrance to the Boston Public Library.
